

4th November 2016

Dear Parents,

It is great to be back, hopefully you enjoyed the holidays and the children are ready for all of the festivities this term brings.

The children have been looking at time this week in maths. They are able to identify o'clock and half past on an analogue clock, with some able to recognise quarter past and quarter to the hour. They learnt about the months of the year and how many days there are in a month. Hopefully they will remember the well-known rhyme to help them with this.

In English we started reading 'Flat Stanley' and the children are really enjoying learning about some of the adventures he has. We now have a map outside the classroom to display any Stanley photographs that you receive back from different places in the world. Last year he travelled as far as Singapore and Australia. He also appeared at Buckingham Palace and at the top of The Shard!

I have set some maths work online for this week covering our focus of 'time,' and the children have spellings to learn ready for next week.

Just a reminder that now the days are getting a little colder, it would be great if the children have something warm to wear for PE, and that they have a coat in school with them every day.

Kind regards,

Mrs Wardle and Mrs Patterson
