

7th October 2016

Dear Parents,

Victorian Day yesterday was a real success, the children not only fully engaged with the differences between now and then, such as no electricity and writing with chalk, they also thoroughly enjoyed it and were great fun too! They can now tell you lots of facts about Victorian times and many about Queen Victoria.

In maths this week the children have been looking at the different ways that we can collect and represent data. They found out that the majority of children in Year 2 have six letters in their names and collected this data in a tally chart. They then represented the data in a bar graph and could see how this made it easier to answer questions on the information collected.

Apologies for the fact that I did not set 'my maths' work last week. I was unfortunately ill with flu for a few days and felt that it would not be productive to set it mid-way through the week. There will be some set for this week.

In English we have been reading a story about a rather greedy cat called Sid. The children have planned and written their own version using alliteration. They were able to improve their writing by adding some great adjectives and thinking about using conjunctions to extend their sentences.

It was great to see so many of you at the Book Look this week and to hear your children talking you through their work!

Have a great weekend,

Mrs Wardle and Mrs Patterson
